Chancellor's Message to the Graduates

We are gathered here today to honor some 3,800 graduates from more than 200 fields of intellectual study.

You and your families should be extremely proud of the dedication and perseverance each of you has exhibited in order to be present here today. You selected a goal and stayed with it to successful completion. Congratulations.

The primary purpose of a university is to help individuals acquire the knowledge and skills to be capable of making sound judgments and contributing to the overall advancement of society. In particular, a university must work to create an environment conducive to the discovery, critical examination, preservation and transmission of knowledge, wisdom and values. Therefore, a university must be judged, not only by your accomplishments, which we honor today, but also by your success in working to improve the quality of life which ultimately ensures the survival of present and future generations.

As you embark on a new frontier of life, we hope you will maintain contact with your University. By your past experiences and valuable suggestions, we are best able to discover how to improve our service to the students who follow you, to the citizens of the community, the state and the nation.

Best of luck and every good wish for the future. We hope to hear from you often.

R. L. Gluckstern

The College Park Campus and The University

The Students

The College Park Campus gives all students the chance to encounter new persons, new ideas and new interests, all of which they could hardly find elsewhere in such variety. Students may discover ancient Greece for the first time; they may try their hand at art, or they may use a computer to help design a better environment for man.

But whatever they investigate, whether it be under a microscope or out in space or within the human mind, their experiences sharpen their vision and improve their judgment. They learn in and out of class, by relating to many people of their own age and by dealing with a cultured faculty. They are able, in these many ways, to better define their directions and their goals.

The Faculty

The men and women who instruct our students at College Park are teachers and scholars who bring to the classroom a depth of knowledge, experience and learning that ranks among the finest of any university campus. Their work ranges from the study of physical forces to the study of man in all of his complexities. Some scholars are searching for practical applications of solar energy, discovering new galaxies of stars or researching substitute processes for pasteurization to increase the shelf life of milk, while others are administering stress tests to study coronary artery disease, debating the philosophical beliefs of the founders of our nation, or studying the world of black Americans at the turn of the century. All of them are sharing the results of their learning with their students in the classroom.

The Campus

Located in suburban Maryland just nine miles from the nation's capital, the College Park Campus offers a diversity of cultural, political and scientific resources to its students. It is in the midst of a great concentration of research and intellectual facilities, such as the National Institutes of Health, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, and the Smithsonian Institution, all within easy commuting distance.

The campus is a spacious one of 1,300 acres. It has 229 major buildings, mostly in the Georgian style of dark brick and stately columns, which overlook playing fields, the tree-lined central mall, or rolling lawns, while a few border the remaining open fields of grazing land belonging to the University.

In enrollment, College Park is among the 10 largest campuses in the country. Undergraduates enrolled in spring 1979 numbered 27,643, and graduate students, 7,098 for a total enrollment of 34,741. This year's College Park operating budget is $158,089,145. The University assisted over 8,000 College Park students with financial aid in 1978-79.

Students may choose from 72 undergraduate and 70 graduate programs leading to degrees. In 1977-78, a total of 5,481 undergraduate, 1,268 master's and 334 doctorate degrees were awarded by the College Park Campus. In the number of doctorates granted annually, the University ranks among the top 30 in the nation.

History

The University had its beginnings in 1807 with the establishment in Baltimore of the College of Medicine, an entirely faculty-owned institution granting the M.D. degree. When its name was changed to the University of Maryland five years later, it was given power to confer additional degrees. The first dental school in America, the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, became a part of the University in 1840.

Subsequently, the University opened schools of pharmacy, law and nursing. Under a charter secured by a group of Maryland planters in 1856, the College Park Campus of the University, then called the Maryland Agricultural College, opened in 1859 and became one of the original land-grant schools in 1865. After a disastrous fire in 1912, the State acquired control of the College and bore the cost of rebuilding. In 1920, the State took over the faculty-owned University in Baltimore, merging it with the State-owned institution at College Park to form the present-day University of Maryland.

In 1886, the Delaware Conference Academy was founded by the Methodist Church in Princess Anne, Maryland. The State acquired this institution in 1948. It was made a campus of the University in 1970, and is known as the University of Maryland Eastern Shore (UMES). A new campus known as University of Maryland Baltimore County (UMBC) was opened at Catonsville in 1966.

Libraries

University libraries include approximately 1,283,200 volumes on the College Park Campus, 16,645 subscriptions to periodicals and newspapers, plus over a million microform units.

The Undergraduate Library has a seating capacity of 4,000 students and is among the nation's largest. Facilities include a quadrasonic concert room, color video-tape players and playback units, enclosed rooms equipped with instructor's consoles for the use of nonprint media materials, and wireless stereo headsets for tapes of lectures, plays, speeches and music.

Research Facilities

Among the exceptional research facilities are a 140 MeV cyclotron; a nuclear reactor; scanning electron microscopes; subsonic, supersonic and hypersonic wind tunnels; an electron ring accelerator; a precision encoder and pattern recognition device; a gravitational radiation detection system, including a gravimeter on the moon; a quiescent plasma device (Q machine); a psycho-pharmacology laboratory; three retro-reflector arrays on the moon; rotating tanks for laboratory studies of meteorological phenomena; Van de Graaff accelerators; a laboratory for basic behavioral research; an assortment of computers; the Astronomy Observatory Center of Materials Research; the Institute for Fluid Dynamics and Applied Mathematics; the Institute for Molecular Physics; and the Water Resources Research Center.

The College Park Campus also owns and operates one of the largest and most sophisticated long wavelength radio telescopes (located in Clark Lake, Calif.) and a cosmic ray laboratory (located in New Mexico).

In addition to these research opportunities in the biological, mathematical and physical sciences, research programs in the behavioral sciences, social sciences and education exist in many bureaus and institutes including the Bureau of Business and Economic Research, the Bureau of Educational Research and Field Services, the Bureau of Governmental Research, the Institute for Child Study, the Institute for Criminal Justice and Criminology, and the Institute for Urban Studies.

Academic Costume

The black caps and gowns worn by the students and faculty in the academic procession are of ancient origin. They have been the traditional costume of the scholar since medieval times and probably represent an adaptation of the ecclesiastical dress since many of the scholars of that period were members of monastic orders.

An intercollegiate commission in 1893 drafted a uniform code for costumes which has since been adopted by the majority of colleges and universities in the United States.

Each of the three academic degrees — bachelor, master and doctor — has its own distinctive gown and hood. The bachelor's gown is distinguished by its long pointed sleeve. The master's gown has a longer, narrow, closed sleeve, extending below the knee; the arm is passed through a slit at the elbow. In contrast, the doctor's gown has a full bell-shaped sleeve with three bars of velvet. The opening of this gown is faced with wide velvet bands. The velvet trim may be black or of a color indicating the general field of learning of the wearer, for example, blue for philosophy, green for medicine, purple for law.

The most colorful and distinctive item of the academic costume is the hood which passes around the neck and extends down the back. The doctor's is the largest of the hoods and the bachelor's the smallest. The bachelor's hood is often omitted. The color of the velvet edging indicates the field of learning. Below is given a list of department or faculty colors.

The colors of the silk lining exposed in the center of the hood are those of the college or university which conferred the degree.

The cap or "mortar board" is uniform in design for all degrees. The tassel may be either black or the color of the field of learning. The tassel of the doctor's cap may be gold.

From Europe the use of academic degrees spread to English universities. Harvard University, the College of William and Mary, and Yale University followed the British pattern in the United States.

Academic Degrees

The degree is awarded for the successful completion of a course of study. There are more than 1,600 different academic degrees currently conferred by American colleges and universities.

The first known degree was a doctorate conferred by the University of Bologna (Italy) in the middle of the 12th Century. Originally, the doctor's and master's degrees were used interchangeably, each indicating that the holder was qualified to give instruction to students. The bachelor's or baccalaureate degree indicated only entrance upon a course of study preparatory to the doctorate or mastership. Gradually, however, the bachelor's degree came to mean successful completion of one level of study preparatory to the higher degrees.

The Doctor's Degree

This is a term meaning teacher, or instructor, applied by ancient Romans to those who delivered public lectures on philosophical subjects. In the Middle Ages, from the 12th century, it came into use as a title of honor borne by men of great learning. It was first made an academic title at the University of Bologna, which received from the emperor the right of appointing doctores legum (doctor of laws). The University of Paris followed in 1145. Soon after, the popes granted the universities the right of appointing doctors canonum et decretalium (teachers of the canon law), and when the study of civil law came to be combined with that of the canon law, the title was changed to doctor utriusque juris (teacher of both laws). The faculties of theology and medicine followed that of law in conferring this title.

The doctorate in philosophy and science, and occasionally in theology and law, is given beyond the baccalaureate degree and requires two to five years of study, the writing of a thesis, and the passing of written and oral examinations. The doctor's degree represents the most advanced earned degree conferred by American institutions. There are two distinct types: the professional or practitioner's degree and the research degree. The first type represents advanced training for the practice of various professions, principally Doctor of Medicine, Doctor of Dental Surgery, Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, Juris Doctor and Doctor of Pharmacy. These degrees carry no implication of original research and are classified by the U.S. Office of Education, with bachelor's degrees, as the first professional degrees. The University of Maryland awarded the first two dental degrees in history, on March 9, 1841, and invented the name of the degree, D.D.S., as well.

The second type of doctor's degree is classified as the research doctorate representing prolonged periods of advanced study, usually accompanied by a dissertation which is designed to be a substantial contribution to existing knowledge on the subject. The most important of these, the Doctor of Philosophy, no longer has an implication of philosophy for its holder, but represents advanced research in any of the major fields of knowledge. It was first awarded in the United States by Yale University in 1861.

The first Ph.D. was awarded by the University of Maryland in 1920.

The Master's Degree

The master's degree is an academic honor conferred upon students who have successfully completed work in advance of the baccalaureate. A thesis and an oral examination are usually required. The word magister, connected with a qualifying phrase, was used among the Romans as a title of honor, but its present meaning must be traced to the time of the establishment of the oldest universities. Regularly organized facilities were not then known as they now exist in the universities. The whole circle of academic activity was limited to seven liberal arts, and those who received public honors on the completion of their courses of studies, for their diligence and knowledge, and had already received the degree of baccalaureate (bachelor) were called magistri artium (master of the liberal arts).

In 1920, the new University of Maryland awarded its first M.A. and M.S. degrees in fields other than agriculture.

The Bachelor's Degree

The bachelor's degree represents completion of a four-year course of study of collegiate grade and is the oldest academic degree used by American institutions of higher learning. The degree, Bachelor of Arts, was first conferred in America in 1642 on the first nine graduates of Harvard College.

Maryland Agricultural College, which was later to become the University of Maryland College Park, awarded the first Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degrees in 1862.

Honorary Doctor of Letters and Commencement Speaker Jane Cahill Pfeiffer

As Chairman of the National Broadcasting Company, Jane Cahill Pfeiffer is the highest ranking woman in broadcasting. The 1954 University of Maryland graduate has been called one of the most talented female executives in the country and perhaps the most powerful woman in America by the Los Angeles Times.

Pfeiffer took the reins as the second in command at NBC last October, in addition to becoming a director of its parent company, RCA Corporation. At NBC, the 46-year-old executive, who is in charge of government relations, legal affairs and employee relations, also has an active role in news policy making and corporate planning.

After receiving a degree in speech and dramatic arts from the University, Pfeiffer joined IBM in 1955 as a systems engineering trainee. She was quickly promoted to a number of division management positions, including IBM site manager in Bermuda where she coordinated the corporation's computer programming and engineering efforts for the NASA computer complex.

Taking a year's leave of absence from IBM in 1966, Pfeiffer became the first woman White House Fellow, working in the office of Robert C. Weaver, then Secretary of Housing and Urban Affairs. She subsequently served as a member of the President's Commission on White House Fellows.

In 1972 Pfeiffer became vice president for communications and government relations at IBM, in charge of advertising, promotion and internal communications. Through this position, the 1975 UM Distinguished Alumna brought IBM into television as a major sponsor of public affairs programming.

Pfeiffer's 20-year career with IBM, which included two years as secretary of the corporation's policy-making committee, won her a national reputation as a highly successful business executive.

In 1976 President Carter asked the administrative and computer expert to become the first woman cabinet member, but she turned him down for family and medical reasons.

After leaving IBM earlier that year, Pfeiffer became an independent consultant to such major companies as RCA as well as many educational institutions. She served in this capacity until named Chairman of NBC last fall.

A native of Washington, D. C., Pfeiffer currently serves as a director of The Bache Group, Chesebrough-Ponds, Inc., International Paper Co., and J. C. Penney Co. She has also been active in numerous public interest organizations, presidential commissions, and various high-level government-industry committees. The UM graduate is a trustee of the University of Notre Dame, The Catholic University of America, the Kettering Foundation, and the Rockefeller Foundation, as well as a member of the Board of Governors of the American Red Cross and the Council on Foreign Relations.

As a UM student, Pfeiffer served as a member of the Mortar Board, Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society, the University Theatre, Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, and the National Collegiate Players, as well as associate editor of the Terrapin, the Old Line, and the M Book.

Her academic and theatrical talents won her the Charles B. Hale Drama Award and recognition in Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges.

Today she is awarded the Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from the University of Maryland.

Honorary Doctor of Science Charles L. Fefferman

When asked to name his most brilliant student during his many years as a mathematics professor at the University of Maryland, James Hummel instantly comments, "Charlie Fefferman, of course!"

Charles L. Fefferman, mathematics professor at Princeton University, is known as one of the world's outstanding professors in the field of classical analysis, and when he was 22, as the youngest full professor in the United States.

Hummel first became acquainted with Fefferman when his parents, Arthur and Liselott Fefferman, found it difficult to provide sufficient educational stimulation to satisfy their son's educational interest. They asked Hummel to provide special tutoring for their 10-year-old, who had already zipped through one of his father's difficult calculus texts.

After meeting with Hummel periodically over two summers, in 1961 Fefferman enrolled in his first university class — a sophomore-level honors mathematics course. The next year while still attending junior high school, he took Hummel's advanced calculus course and a physics class. "At 12, he was equal to the best undergrad math student in the department," recalls Hummel.

The boy wonder in math received help from UM professors in cutting enrollment red tape. At that time a student had to be a high school graduate or have passed an equivalency test and had to be 21 to take the test. He became a full-time UM student in 1963 at the age of 13.

Shortly after enrolling at the University, Fefferman began to take graduate level courses. He was named to Phi Beta Kappa and published his first scholarly work at age 16. Hummel remembers a student in one calculus course asking, "You know that little kid who sits up front? Are we supposed to understand the questions he asks during class?"

In 1966 the math whiz became one of the youngest UM graduates when at the age of 17 he received a joint bachelor of science degree in mathematics and physics, three years after becoming a full-time college student.

The UM graduate then ventured to Princeton where he earned a Ph.D. in 1969 with such honors as a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, a National Science Foundation Fellowship, and a Princeton National Fellowship.

Born on April 18, 1949, Fefferman attracted national attention in 1971 when, at the age of 22, he was named professor at the University of Chicago, making him the youngest full professor at any U. S. college or university. Once again, Fefferman gained this status when he returned to Princeton in 1974 as the youngest professor in the history of the 228-year-old institution.

Fefferman has earned numerous honors since his early years at the University of Maryland. The latest, and perhaps the most notable, came last summer when he was awarded the Fields Medal, the mathematician's equivalent to the Nobel Prize in Science and the most prestigious award a mathematician may receive.

He was awarded the Fields Medal for his innovations in classical analysis that have opened new areas of study in the interface of harmonic analysis, complex analysis, and differential equations. "His work is dominated by an uncanny insight into the correct generalizations to high dimensions of lower-dimensional theorems; this led Fefferman to the solutions of many problems long thought to be unsolvable," cites the 1979 Encyclopedia Britannica Book of the Year.

Fefferman received the first Alan T. Waterman Award given by the National Science Foundation in 1976 for "his excellence as a teacher and outstanding ability as a researcher, and his exceptional promise for significant future development." In addition to the medal, the Silver Spring, Md. native was awarded $50,000 a year for three years to continue his advanced mathematical research.

The 30-year-old professor was also awarded the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation Fellowship in 1970, a NATO Postdoctoral Fellowship in 1971, the Salem Prize for Outstanding Research by a Fourier Analyst Under the Age of 30 in 1971, as well as an election to the American Academy of Sciences in 1972, and the National Academy of Sciences this spring.

Today he is awarded the Honorary Doctor of Science degree from the University of Maryland.

Honorary Doctor of Letters E. Brooke Lee

E. Brooke Lee's unique vision and dynamic leadership in Montgomery County politics and government during the vital years of tremendous growth and expansion within the State of Maryland has helped to mold the county into one of the most prosperous in the nation.

Under Lee's guidance, the Montgomery County government invested heavily during the 1920's and 1930's in schools, roads, parks, sanitation, and police. Under his leadership during these critical years of growth, the county became noted for the high quality of its services, attracting a high proportion of professional families to settle in a county known nationwide as one of the most desirable in which to live.

Born in Washington, D. C. on Oct. 23, 1892, Lee attended

Princeton University for one year and then interrupted his education to work in the office of his father, U. S. Senator Blair Lee. Shortly thereafter, the young Lee attended George Washington University Law School at night and graduated with a law degree in 1917.

He served in the American infantry during World War I, and was decorated several times for heroism and leadership, receiving the American Distinguished Service Cross, the Silver Star Citation, the French Croix de Guerre, and the Belgian Order of Leopold Award.

Returning to the U. S., Lee was elected Comptroller of the Maryland Treasury and was subsequently appointed Secretary of State of Maryland in 1923.

In 1926 he was elected to the Maryland General Assembly, representing Montgomery County.

As speaker of the House of Delegates from 1928 to 1931, Lee introduced and supported legislation which created the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the first program in the Maryland counties to oversee zoning, land use, and general and community planning.

The father of former Acting Governor Blair Lee, III, Lee was Vice-Chairman and Park Commissioner of the MNCPPC from 1942-48. During his term, all of the stream valleys extending from Montgomery County into the District of Columbia were preserved in the county park system. In addition, the Park Commission inaugurated the first public recreation program for Montgomery County.

Serving as a member of the University of Maryland Board of Regents from 1927 to 1935, Lee strongly supported a large and expansive building program for the University which included a new administration building, two new women's dormitories, H. J. Patterson Hall, an improved dining hall, as well as other buildings on the College Park Campus.

In addition, Lee was elected to the Democratic State Central Committee for Montgomery County, and later served as its chairman. During his term from 1921 to 1946, Montgomery County built all the highways now connecting Washington to the county and most of the highways between the suburban communities and the agricultural sections of the county.

Lee's influence as chairman also helped Montgomery County to increase teachers' salaries in the public schools to the levels then paid to D. C. teachers. The county also built a series of modern school buildings with gymnasiums, assembly halls, and cafeterias.

"Lee deserves the principal legislative credit for the enactment of the Maryland State Teachers Pension and for being among the group of Maryland officials who moved public education in the State into the 20th century," said Thomas G. Pullen, former State Superintendent of Education, speaking at Lee's 80th birthday party in 1972.

Instrumental in developing the city of Silver Spring on the site of the old family plantation, the 86-year-old land developer has in more recent years raised registered Polled Hereford cattle and grain on several Montgomery, Frederick, and Howard County farms.

In addition to farming, Lee now serves as president of several apartment corporations in Silver Spring and of a number of other Maryland corporations which develop local shopping and industrial areas.

Today he is awarded the Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from the University of Maryland.

Scholarship Honors

Candidates for bachelor's degrees who have earned honors of scholarship upon graduation are indicated in the alphabetical listings of Division or College. To be eligible for consideration for such honors a candidate must meet the following general criteria: (1) have completed two years of work at the University of Maryland (60 semester hours) and (2) have a scholastic average of B (Grade Point Average of 3.000) or higher in University of Maryland work prior to the last semester of registration before award of degree.

May 1979 candidates who meet these criteria are shown in the alphabetical lists as qualifying, upon graduation, for the designations "Summa Cum Laude," if they ranked in the top two per cent of the candidates in their respective Colleges or Divisions; "Magna Cum Laude," if in the next three per cent; or "Cum Laude," if in the next five per cent.
